Dear June:

Friday night: homesickness comes down on me with all its fury. I guess by now, you think that I'm always homesick. Well there are times when I'm actually happy up here. It's just when the week-end rolls around that it becomes hard to take.

Well, I passed everything including algebra! Pretty good grades too. I only hope I can keep them that high until June.

June, ah! what a thought, I like the name June for a lot of reasons.

I'm glad you is a working girl again because I know your glad, but god!

what hours. From your letter I understand that you are starting to work permanently Right? Every day in the week? Well we'll have to make some mid-night shows, if you have to work every night. There is one day and night that I hope you can get off and that is somewhere around June 19, you know the church picnic. Boy! are we going to have fun. I have to cut out that kind of thinking; if I keep it up, I won't be able to wait.

We are going to have silver taps tonight at 11 o'clock for one of our seniors who was killed when he fell from an oil derrick. It is really an impressive ceremony. There'll be about 6,000 men standing at attention while taps are played.

Well that's all kiddo until next time write every chance you get.

Love
Bill.
