

April 26.

June Darling:

How are things back home today? Very few letters have come through this past week! Your #51 came ahead of 50. Whew 50 is I don't know. However I did receive one unmarked one the other day so that could have been it. I'm quite a bit behind you in letters am I not? I'm sorry but I won't bother with excuses: you've heard them all by now anyway.

Received a letter from Alvin just yesterday. He tells me of the wedding and all that took place at the church and just after. He will be moving soon I guess.

I was over to see Muck & Partridge today and I flew with them for a while. They are very close to me now since this last move I made. They are getting along swell, but both are a little homesick which isn't at all unusual because I've been that way for some time now.

Thanks for the Bat Parade dope. I ~~approve~~ approve of the list, don't you?

This Pic "A Guy Named Joe" is on at one of the shows in London. I want to get in and see it by all means. They say they use B-26's as jap bombers. Muck and Partridge saw it and said it was very good.

I really don't have anything further to tell Honey. I just hope everything is right with you and yours. Don't work too hard and be good. Just stay as sweet as you are.

By the way, I was riding a bus between two of the villages near here the other day and a cute little W.A.C. got on board. She was just as high as my heart and had dark brown hair and I almost sure that her eyes were brown. Guess who I was thinking of about then. Tell your mom & Dad & Aunt Myra hello and love & kisses to you.
